

DR. PATRICIA DAVID
Guiding Eyes for the Blind
Board of Directors

Dr. Patricia David is the former Senior Diversity Advisor for JPMorgan Chase.

During her tenure, she provided strategic advice to the firm on a wide range of diversity topics impacting the work environment.

She led targeted initiatives key to driving firmwide strategies. Pat was a member of the JPMorgan Chase Diversity Council, and in collaboration with key business leaders, helped communicate diversity and inclusion efforts within the organization through various means.

Joining the firm in 2010, Pat served as head of Diversity for seven years, leading diversity and inclusion efforts across four global regions. With responsibility for developing and implementing strategies aligned to the firm's business strategy, she also tracked and reported on the ROI of initiatives and had oversight with the Human Resource community to implement Affirmative Action plans for regulatory compliance.

In both roles, she was an instrumental leader across diversity and talent management efforts, Diversity Councils, Business Resource Groups, Management Training and was a driving force to launch the Advancing Black Leaders diversity strategy and office of Disability Inclusion. Pat brought a passion and personal touch to her work that colleagues at all levels across the firm truly valued.

Pat, a strategic thought leader on behalf of several diversity organizations, was also a member of the firmwide Black Executive Forum and the esteemed Executive Leadership Council. She has also been featured in various publications and received numerous awards.

Pat received her Honorary Doctorate in Humane Letters from the Fordham Gabelli School of Business. In honor of her academic and professional accomplishments, starting in 2015 the Fordham University Gabelli School of Business annually recognizes a female graduating senior for dedication to inclusiveness in the business world with the 'Patricia David Trailblazer Award'.
